

Data Resources Privacy Policy

The following policies regarding our handling of personal information are intended to ensure appropriate protection and management

This website (dri.co.jp) is owned and run by Data Resources, Inc. Data Resources, Inc., with the prior consent of individuals who provide their name, address, telephone number and E-mail address through an order form or inquiry form on this website, registers this information. The information that we receive from such users is used solely for the purpose of identity verification, contacting such individuals, shipping products, providing information, and improving our service. Information obtained from individuals who have registered on this website is not divulged or provided to third parties. Data Resources, Inc., deems that protecting personal information of users is a critical matter for the company, and from the standpoint of appropriately protecting such personal information, we have established the following privacy policy.

Privacy Policy

We will strictly manage all information collected from individuals who register on this website, and will only use this information for our administrative tasks, and will not, without permission from users who register on this website, pass on this information to third parties. In addition, we will not collect personal information on users who have registered on this website without such users being aware that such a collection is being carried out.

Collection of personal information

By “personal information” in our privacy policy, we are referring to the individual’s name, address, telephone number, email address, etc., in other words, information which can identify an individual. When an individual registers as a member on our website, or submits a questionnaire, or requests documents, the personal information of this individual is registered.

Usage of personal information

The purpose of utilizing personal information collected when an individual provides information through a questionnaire or inquiry form, is limited to enabling us to provide the individual with a service which they have requested on their own accord, and also to improving the user experience of the individual while using our website. We use personal information in the following cases.

- To send or ship out items or information requested by the individual who has registered personal information on the website, and also to send out notices.
- We may send notices to the address and e-mail address that the individual has registered with us (if the individual does not wish to receive such notices, the individual can contact us to terminate such services).

Providing personal information to third parties

We do not provide personal information of a user to third parties without the permission of the user. This will not apply, however, if a valid reason, such as disclosure based upon laws or regulations exists.

Changes of policy

If we determine that improvement is warranted with regard to our privacy policy we may make changes without informing users beforehand. We ask for your understanding in such cases. If this happens, we will put a notice up on this website after the change has been made.

Updating personal information and removal of personal information

If the user wishes to update his or her personal information, or remove personal information, they should contact the following address:
